

Dexter passes censorship law

DEXTER — The City Council passed a censorship law during a lively meeting Monday night, as well as hearing a complaint about the police department and setting dog license fees.

The complaint about police came from Keith Foushee, who walked into the council room about half way through the meeting. He apologized for disturbing the meeting and then said, "A policeman threatened to kill my son."

Foushee said two witnesses had seen police officer Robert Hubbard tell his son, Dan Foushee, that if he stepped foot within the city limits again, he would kill him.

"You know anything about this," Mayor Willis Conner asked, turning to Police Chief James Tetters.

Tetters replied that he did not, but said an officer had received a call earlier that the man's son had threatened to kill the officer and burn his house down.

Pacing the floor near the council table, Tetters said Dan Foushee had fought with police earlier Monday but that Hubbard was not involved.

Hubbard's brother, Roger Hubbard, also an officer, came to the meeting later and gave the council some background information.

"He (Ron Foushee) called me this afternoon and said that I had been harassing him," Hubbard said, then added that he had stopped Foushee several times but had probable cause and could have arrested him on every occasion.

"I told him to come on over, you've got me mad," Hubbard continued. "Come on over and I'll stomp you."

Hubbard did not deny telling Foushee this, but indicated he did so only after he had been threatened.

Hubbard said he was not the one who had tangled with him earlier but that Foushee thought he was and told his parents it was him.

Tetters this morning verified that Robert Hubbard had nothing to do with the situation. He said Keith Foushee did not name the two alleged witnesses. Tetters added that police have had problems with the son before.

The council passed a censorship ordinance by a unanimous vote, but apparently with misgivings.

The law was drawn up by City Attorney Paul McGhee in response to requests by a group opposed to the movies being shown at Family Drive-In which they consider obscene.

"The way this is written it also applies to every news stand, every book display," Alderman Jack Smarr warned. "I have one question: who's going to be the judge of what's obscene?"

"We always have that question when censorship is involved," McGhee answered. "Police are the traditional people to enforce the law."

"The chief of police will also be judge of what's obscene?" Smarr asked.

"His won't be the final judgment," McGhee answered. "Ultimately, the courts will decide."

Tetters did not seem enthusiastic about the council's decision.

"On this new ordinance," he asked toward the end of the meeting, "am I going to be the one to decide what's obscene. Somebody is going to call me and say it's a filthy book and it may shock me as much as them."

Tetters did not receive a definite answer.

"Between you, me and Paul (McGhee), we'll try to weather it," Conner told them.

McGhee said this morning it will be a complicated process that will require much discussion to decide the proper procedure.

A group of three persons supporting the council's decision was present at the meeting.

George Arthur, director of missions for Cane Creek-Stoddard Baptist Association, said they had not asked for the new law, since they were just trying to keep certain movies from being shown, but they are not displeased with the law.

"If it takes censorship to keep morality, then let's have it," he said.

Carmen Love of Dexter, another member of the group, said, "I'm not opposed to censorship. I think censorship is good, in a fashion."

Arthur added that if a person is perverted enough, he cannot be stopped from reading obscene books or magazines, but "we should not be subjected to it."

The third citizen would not give his name to the press.

Asked about his vote after the meeting, Smarr said excitedly, "Sure, I have misgivings. I'm not for censorship in any form, but it's what the people in my ward want. It's not what I say, it's what the people in my ward say."

Also, the council learned Monday night that Swift & Co. has approved a plan to improve sewers in the east part of the city. The plan calls for the city to install a sewer line if the company pretreats its waste.

The city is applying for a grant from the federal government which, if approved, is expected to pay for most of the project.

The council learned that the city is being sued by West Side Realty to change a strip of land between Bridle Road and One Mile Road from a zoning classification allowing only single-family homes to a R-2 classification which would permit apartment buildings.

Rod O'Donnell, owner of the company, previously tried unsuccessfully to convince the council to change the zoning classification even though the zoning commission had previously decided to leave the area zoned R-1.

At that time O'Donnell told the council he could not afford to sell the land in question for residential use.

In other business, the council voted to allow Water Supt. Joe Whitaker to take bids on repairs of a city water tank, presented a resolution to Mrs. Mannie Castner in appreciation for her

Obscenity defined by the law

DEXTER — City officials apparently are on a collision course with the age old question: what is obscene? Alderman Leslie Day says the city's new law "names parts of people's bodies I didn't even know they had" in an attempt to define "obscenity."

The law says that a piece is obscene if the average person, applying contemporary community standards, would find that it appeals to a prurient interest in sex, portrays or describes in a patently offensive way ultimate sexual acts, normal or perverted, actual or simulated excretory functions and lewd exhibition of the genitals, which, taken as a whole, does not have serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value.

Mechanized farming could help Indians, Matthews believes

A slide presentation of his study mission in India was presented by Scott Matthews at the Sikeston Rotary Club meeting Monday night at the Ramada Inn.

Matthews, 915 Cambridge Drive, was one of five outstanding young business and professional men selected from Rotary District 609 to make a round-the-world journey which began in January. The five member exchange study mission team was selected from a field of 30 nominees submitted by the 40 Rotary clubs in the southeast section of the state.

Locations the study mission visited included Delhi, Calcutta, the Assam area, Darjeeling, Assam, Dacca and Kathmandu. Matthews said he was not allowed to take pictures of airports, customs, bridges, dams, radio or television stations, museums, factories or oilfields because the government did not want any secrets brought out of India.

Matthew said a 44-hour journey from Delhi to Calcutta was spent on roads that were a succession of holes held together by asphalt. The renovation of buildings was done on bamboo scaffolding instead of steel because the workmen could hear the noise it made before giving away.

The study mission included visits to government buildings, temples and shrines, factories, oil fields, colleges and seven weeks of staying in 31 different places with different families.

Matthews said families live together, including parents, grandparents and children. When asked what he thought of the people he stayed with,

Matthews replied, "they are the most hospitable people on earth."

When asked about agriculture, Matthews said that there is not a lot of farmland. A large farm would have 25 acres and small farms about half an acre. He said the plight of the farmer is discouraging because the government will take land from those who have it, issue them useless bonds and divide the land among the tenants who work it.

Machinery is not used much because it is feared it will cause more unemployment. Of 660 million people, he said 15 per cent are unemployed.

Matthews said the soil he saw was rich and fertile, and he believes that if the people used machinery to plant, it would help them raise more food to offset the present food shortages.

When asked about India's major problem, Matthew said it is population. The man in the family believes in a large family so his children can help support him and take care of him in old age.

He said the Indian government is trying a sterilization program in which one of the parents is asked to submit to sterilization, after the third child. Even when a child is taken in for treatment, say for a broken arm, he said the doctors will call the father in and try to talk him into sterilization.

Matthews said he was glad to have been chosen for the study mission because he now has a better understanding of India's problems and people and has a greater appreciation for America.

Sikeston man injured

Police said Proffer vehicle was traveling east on East Malone when a car driven by Robert Hood Bean, 31, of 220 Dixie St., pulled out of the

Easton held in shooting

CHARLESTON — Matthew "Pepper" Easton Jr., 46, is being held for investigation in the shooting death Monday of his common law wife, Mamie Pauline Adams, 36, police said today.

The shooting reportedly occurred about 11:30 a.m. Monday at the home the couple shared at 311 Oliver St.

Police said the woman's body was found lying in the living room floor. She had been shot once in the right side of the stomach and was pronounced dead at the scene by Mississippi County Coroner Elgin McMikie.

A 22-caliber pistol, believed to be the shooting weapon, was found in the woman's right hand.

Easton reported the shooting at 12:44 p.m. and identified the body at the scene, according to police.

Gun residue tests were made on the hands of the victim and on Easton, who remains in custody, pending results of the tests from the crime lab in Columbia.

The body was taken to Sparks Funeral Home, where arrangements are incomplete.

She was born Feb. 4, 1940 in rural Charleston.

Survivors include her mother, Mrs. Mamie Jennings of Charleston; two brothers, Cleo Jennings of Chicago, Ill. and William Jennings of Florida; and four sisters, Mrs. Cora Purdix, Mrs. Fannie Rollon and Miss Lucy Bell Jennings of Chicago, Ill. and Mrs. Geraldine Wright of Miami, Fla.

Masked bandits rob Quick Shop

Two masked bandits escaped with approximately $150 in cash and one blank money order from the Quick Shop at the corner of North Main and Lake Street in an armed robbery at 11:06 p.m. Monday.

According to police reports, the two white males entered the front door of the building, each carrying short-barreled pistols. They told the store's two employees, Mrs. Sue Butrum of 243 Kinder St. and Miss Sandra Taylor of Sikeston Route Three, to lie down on the floor or "you will be dead." They then took the small bills and money order from the cash register and escaped on foot.

One suspect is described as being approximately five feet six inches tall, weighing around 180 pounds. The other is described as approximately 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighing around 150 pounds. Police are continuing their investigation.

Allen Mayes, 406 Marion Street, principal of Southeast School on Ables Road, reported to police that the medicine cabinet at the school nurses station had been robbed sometime between 5:30 p.m. Thursday and 11:55 a.m. Monday. Ten vials of medicines were stolen.

According to police, there were no signs of forcible entry.

New Madrid council authorizes refunds

NEW MADRID — In a dual session Monday night of the City Council, newly elected officials were sworn in, appointment of a new city clerk was approved and an ordinance was passed authorizing refunds to tax payers of assessments for storm drainage.

Outgoing Ward One Alderman "Ras" Jones introduced an ordinance for the use of $27,862.31 from $48,755.06 in Federal Flood Disaster reimbursement funds to repay property owners for storm drainage costs assessed against them when their streets were paved. The balance of the funds would be applied to repayment of notes for funds borrowed for street improvement from the Bank of New Madrid.

Ward One Alderman Bill Boyd seconded the motion for the ordinance and it was passed by a vote of four in favor and one against. Property owners to receive the unexpected windfall are those whose streets were paved during the fall of 1971 and the summer of 1972 and they are: Kingshighway from Scott to Pinnell; Church Street from Waters to Mill; Church Street from Davis to Mill; All of Diggs; Line Street from Virginia to Waters; Mitchell St. from Route U to the railroad tracks; Powell Street from Main Street to the railroad track; Mill Street from Main Street to the railroad tracks; Waters Street from line to Main Street; Mott Street from Main to Line; and Virginia Street from Main to the railroad tracks. Refunds will be from about ninety cents to $2 a property foot abutting the streets named.

After passage, Mayor Jim Cravens pointed out that the ordinance might not be valid unless approved by the new board, since expiring terms were supposed to have been completed when new officials were elected.

Other business handled by the old board was approval of the certificate of the recent election and the operating budget for the New Madrid Power Plant for the fiscal year beginning June 1, totaling $38,568,363.

Following adjournment of the old board, new council members sworn in were Joe Beaber, ward one; Virginia Carlson, ward two; and Bob Pulliam, ward three; along with Mayor Jim Cravens, Police Chief Virgil "Flip" Dees and City Collector Jack Long.

First business handled by the new board was authorization for issuance of a 3.2 per cent beer license to Otis Townsend for the premises known as the Harlem Club at the corner of Riley and Russell streets in the old Luther Cook building.

The ordinance for the payment of flood disaster money to the street owners for storm drainage was then re-introduced by alderman Boyd and seconded by alderwoman Carlson, after which the ordinance was again passed unanimously.

A report of park improvement progress showed that the picnic pavilion at the Chrisler and Davis Street Park had been erected and all that remained to complete the park was staining the pavilion and the erection of fences and installing more tennis nets.

Mayor Cravens appointed Dixie Leonburger to the position of City Clerk effective May 1 to replace Retiring City Clerk Pauline Allen, whose resignation is to be effective May 7. The appointment was unanimously approved by the board.

NOTED AND PASSED ...

A Washington, D.C. survey shows that hospital costs there now exceed $200 a day, according to newspaper headlines (22 March).

It's getting so folks can't afford to be sick any more. We know that the calendar says that "Spring is here"; but from the way the weather has been acting, don't count on it.

News item: "Bicentennial celebration promotes boom in curios and antiques." The message is: Don't throw anything away when you clean out your attic during spring cleaning. What may be considered "junk" to one person often turns out to be something of value to another. And don't forget that items that date back only to the 1930's are now, in some instances, considered "old." One case in point, according to the article: "Depression glass" and "carnival glass." This dishware — plates, cups, saucers, etc., which were either given away or offered as "free" sales premiums back in the 1930's — now sells for $5.00, $10.00 or more per item — depending upon the pattern and color. And when we think of how much of that "old junk" was probably hauled to the town dump!

A recent feature article in the U.S. News and World Report was on the subject: "The Power of Our Judges; Are They Going Too Far?" A quick sidewalk survey on our part shows that on a ratio of about nine to one, folks generally agree that the power of the Courts has indeed gone "too far." The big question now is: How do we common folk get to tell the Judges what to do, now that they are so strongly in the position of telling us what to do?

ALL IS FORGIVEN

A Notre Dame star went to a sterling, but absent-minded priest every week for confession. The priest had the habit of marking the number of sins on his sleeve with a piece of chalk in order to mete out the proper penance. "Father," said the player one day, "I ran clear across the field to clip a player in our last game."

"That was very wrong, my son," said the priest, making a chalk mark.

"When he fell, I kicked him in the teeth."

"How terrible, my son! Will you ever learn true Christianity?" (Four more chalk marks.)

"And then when the referee wasn't looking, I chewed off a piece of his ear."

"Saints preserve us! You're a disgrace to your fine teachers and the college!" By this time the chalk marks were clear up to the priest's elbow. "What was the team you were playing, my son?"

"Southern Methodist," said the player.

"Oh, beamed the priest, rubbing off every mark on his sleeve. "I guess boys will be boys."

"It is time to get our economic house in order." How many times have you heard someone say that? It usually comes from some senator or congressman who is looking for a vote or a ten-second spot on a national network. He wants to show his "deep concern" for the country's well-being so he uses a collection of platitudes and worn out phrases in hopes that no one will ask him what he really said.

However, it may be useful to analyze our economy in comparison to a house for the moment. If we do, we will notice that Congress has been building a very queer structure for the past 40 or more years. Yet rather than stand back for a moment to eye their entire creation, our lawmakers continue to place brick on brick and worry little about what is taking shape.

On February 25 of this year, the House of Representatives added some more "bricks" — 33 billion dollars' worth to be exact. By a vote of 212 to 189, it voted to extend the national debt ceiling from $595 billion to $627 billion. It is the fifth time in the past twelve months that Congress has sharply increased the amount of the national debt.

It is especially alarming to note the rate at which the debt ceiling is being raised. It took Congress a mere 12 months to add another $132 billion to the nation's indebtedness. The taxpayers are now coughing up $32 billion annually just to pay the interest on the debt.

So it seems that Congress' "economic house" is beginning to have the appearance of a building about 20 feet wide and 50 stories high. Yet all the majority of congressmen seem to be able to do is to keep extending the ceiling higher and higher, at a rate of over $100 billion per year. They seem to believe that "the sky is the limit." We have to wonder how much more it will take before the walls begin to buckle and the entire structure comes toppling down.

HIRING A CITY COMMISSIONER?

Five persons have filed resumes (that's a fancy word for summary and is usually used in the area of job experience) and are about to be called in for interviews by the city commissioners, according to the mayor.

This statement that five candidates have "submitted resumes" and are being "interviewed" is a real mind-boggler.

It has to be the weirdest way of selecting a new commissioner in a city of the United States since this country became a democracy in 1776.

Sure, it's fine to let anyone who would like to serve step up and be considered. But a resume? An interview? It's more like hiring than appointing. It would be nice to know what is considered proper qualifications because it doesn't ring a bell that previous commissioners, elected or appointed, had to furnish their pedigree before they could be so honored.

It could even be a violation of the federal privacy act.

On the other hand, what better way of being sure the new commissioner will be a member of the club?

Wouldn't it be funny if the five turned out like this during the Question and Answer session?

Q. Do you support the firemen or would you vote with the rest of the council?

A. Well, I think they have a good point. After all, the federal government makes us all a bit angry sometimes with their regulations and the firemen don't really ask for the cut in hours—it was a government regulation. They shouldn't have to give up a raise because of something that happened in Washington.

Commissioner: That's all, thank you.

Next candidate:
Q. Do you favor an expenditure of $20,000 per year for a city manager?

A. Hell, no.

Commissioner: That's all, thank you.

Third candidate:
Q. Are you in favor of socking the people with a city sales tax?

A. Absolutely not.

Commissioner: That's all, thank you.

Fourth candidate:
Q. Do you believe the present commissioners are doing a good job?

A. Let's put it this way. I believe I could add a new dimension to the group—maybe what you would call a more liberal viewpoint.

Commissioner: That's all, thank you.

Fifth candidate:
Q. Do you side with the firemen or the city?

A. Duh—on what?

Q. Never mind. Do you think the city manager is being paid too much?

A. Duh—what's he gettin'?

Q. Never mind. Are you in favor of a sales tax?

A. Duh—I thought we already had one.

Q. Quite true and do you think the commissioners now in office are doing a good job?

A. Duh—Which ones is that now?

Commissioner: Never mind. Just report to the next meeting.

Come to think of it, it really isn't all that funny.

BO'S PRATFALL

If Callaway's guilty, he's stupid

"STUPID" LOOKS like the best verdict that could come out of the ruckus over President Ford's erstwhile campaign manager and a ski resort in Colorado.

At the worst, FORD is looking at the kind of "influence" scandal that embarrassed the Truman administration, chased Sherman Adams out of the Eisenhower White House, and made Lyndon Johnson wish he had never heard of Bobby Baker.

...And all of it on the eve of the ILLINOIS primary, where Ford hopes to land a knockout blow in his impressive effort to beat down the challenge from Ronald REAGAN. Probably, Ford will win today in Illinois...but no thanks to the ski resort flap, certainly.

The fellow with his neck on the block is Howard (Bo) CALLAWAY, sidelined this weekend as major domo of the President Ford Committee.

The questions that touch Callaway's brains and/or integrity have to do with a ski resort in Colorado. Callaway owns a controlling interest in the enterprise; his brother-in-law manages it. The resort operates on public land, under a permit from the FOREST SERVICE.

The suspicious events—and they are suspicious—go back to the last days of Callaway's tenure as secretary of the Army, a post he left in July, 1975, for the campaign. The Callaway-controlled firm wanted Forest Service permission to expand the resort by 2000 acres, and Callaway made his case to Agriculture Department officials during a meeting in his Pentagon office.

The district ranger, nevertheless, recommended denial of the request. He was transferred. His replacement recommended approval. And Callaway admits raising the possibility to department officials that he might take his case straight to their boss, Secretary Earl Butz.

But he says he did not go to Butz, after all.

The central questions: (1) Why was the first ranger transferred, and at whose instigation? (2) What facts justified overturning the decision against the ski resort? (3) Did Callaway take the case to Butz, and did Butz intervene?

Callaway's certain error was in dropping Butz's name. NBC, which broke the story, said the Forest Service wrote a "political early-warning" report after Butz's name entered the picture.

If that is all that went on, it means simply only that Callaway is as dumb as he acts. Since taking the helm of the PFC last July, Callaway's gaffes and organizational ineptitude have suggested, powerfully, that this particular Georgia boy is not too quick, despite his experience as a congressman and secretary of the Army.

Remember when Bo stepped off the cliff by saying that Reagan is not qualified for the presidency, and yet left open the possibility that a Ford-Reagan ticket could come out of the convention? How could Reagan be unqualified for No. 1 but okay for No. 2? The press wondered. Callaway's answer made no sense, and barely qualified as everyday English.

It is generally conceded, too, that the hiring of campaign pro Stuart Spencer saved the Ford campaign from Callaway's unhappy talent for making everyone mad, and failing to DO anything about putting a campaign together.

If Callaway was operating true to form, and nothing more, the public should give Ford a clear field to bring him back to the campaign. This would be no more than recognition of a candidate's right to hire a campaign chief given to embarrassing pratfalls.

However, if improper influence affected the decision, Ford is—and ought to be—in big trouble. Presidents, and all other public officials, must never be able to escape at least partial responsibility for the sins of their subordinates.

If Callaway had nothing to conceal, he should have taken every pain to put the ski resort matter out front, from the first, by announcing that he was involved in a dispute with the Service, was willing to put any and all facts on the record, and was putting the affair on the table to avoid any suspicions later that something sinister was afoot. It was Ford's duty to make sure his campaign people understood that such a disclosure was the only right way to handle sensitive matters.

Either Ford was remiss in instructing Callaway in how to go about dealing with an agency of the administration, or Callaway paid too little, or no, attention.

If we sound naive, we are glad of it. The public's naivete about how "things work" is honest government's best friend.

HUNGATE SALTS POLITICAL PEOPLE

Rep. Bill Hungate spun a few stories, sang a couple of the satirical songs that have become his trademark, and closed his speech with a warning about the state of democracy in the United States.

Hungate delighted the Democrats with his opening barbs at the Saturday morning breakfast of Democrat Days.

"We're both trying to do the Lord's Work, it's just that the Republicans are doing it their way and we're doing it His way," Hungate said.

Kissinger "is like the man who sees a friend drowning 20 feet from shore. He throws him a 15-foot rope, and when the man drowns he says 'I went more than half way.'"

Kissinger's policy of detente was likened to "a wife swapping party where you come home alone."

President Gerald Ford "is the most sensible man talking nonsense I have ever seen."

Governor Christopher Bond "takes a good picture, but that's about all."

Ex-governor John Conally, who switched to the Republican side, prompted Hungate to say "I've seen seven pictures of Judas Iscariot lately, and every one of them looks like John."

Hungate, who gained some prominence during the Watergate scandal with his piano ditties satirizing the Nixon administration, sang two new songs at the breakfast, with Ford as his target:

"Ford's a throwback
"He oughta go back
"Where the haystack is the norm

"Take Earl Butz by the arm
"Have a working funny farm
"Now maybe Rocky

"Won't be so cocky
"Shoving New York down the tube

"They know that New York City's mighty pretty
"But they've no pity
"He's signing vetos

"And munching Fritos
"And giving Russia wheat and corn

"Oh, I wish again
"Ford was in Michigan
"Back on the farm."

Hungate switched to a serious vein after the piano was rolled away.

"The biggest threat to this nation is when a whole people believe their government lies to them. We need to renew our faith in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, and there is no better way to celebrate the Bicentennial.

"We must learn you can't fight crime with crime, you can't stop corruption with more corruption, you can only stop wrongdoing with rightdoing.

"We must seek to join those patriots whose love of America was so great they would make her a model for mankind," Hungate said.

Sen. Thomas Eagleton, said Missouri Democrats face a tough election year. A Democratic senator has resigned and five of the ten Missouri U.S. representatives are leaving office. Representatives Lee Sullivan, Bill Randall, and Hungate have resigned. Rep. Jerry Litton and Rep. Jim Symington have decided not to run for their House seats to campaign for the Senate.

And Eagleton noted that, in 1976, democratic governments are in the minority around the globe.

"Democracy is difficult to preserve. Look at India. That nation had a democratic form of government for 28 years and lost it," Eagleton said.

WARNING FOR PARENTS

Parents of small children should note that clothing labeled "flame retardant" is not flame proof!

Flame retardant fabric will, however, resist flames better than ordinary fabrics, and the flame spreads more slowly if the source of fire is kept on the fabric. It is also self-extinguishing; the flame dies out when the source of fire is removed.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:

Howard Hughes' Final Days

with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON— From the tight, secretive, little circle around the late Howard Hughes, we have been given a description of his final years as a penthouse hermit.

Until now, no member of the inner circle has broken the absolute silence he imposed on them. The circumstances surrounding his death, however, have persuaded a few to speak reluctantly about life in Hughes' inner sanctum. They agreed to talk to us on condition that we not identify them.

The nation's richest citizen died the death of a pauper — emaciated, shriveled, dehydrated, with bed sores and a bleeding tumor. Dr. Victor Manuel Montemayor Martinez, who was called in to administer to Hughes, concluded: "The patient had been seriously neglected."

A strikingly similar description of Hughes was submitted to the sheriff's office by Dr. Harold L. Feikes shortly after the billionaire vanished from Las Vegas more than five years ago. Other witnesses have described Hughes as a wasted invalid, with unkempt, straggly hair and whiskers.

Customs inspector Harold Sawyer, who boarded Hughes' chartered plane in December 1972, told us the recluse had collar-length hair, a full beard and a black hat pulled down over his head. He spoke in a muffled voice.

Yet we spoke to half a dozen other witnesses who have seen Hughes during the past six years. They described him as a tall, thin, distinguished man with a neatly trimmed Van Dyke beard. They said he was cordial, alert, even talkative, with an uncanny memory of past details.

We have concluded there were two Howard Hughes, either the same man in different states, or two different persons. Significantly, we discovered that in the 1960s a movie actor named Brooks Randall had been hired occasionally to impersonate Hughes.

The billionaire's intimates now tell us that the two conflicting descriptions fit the real Howard Hughes at different periods. He had a barber on 24-hour call; sometimes he would submit to regular haircuts and have his beard trimmed into a neat Van Dyke. But other times, he refused to let the barber near him for prolonged spells.

Hughes began to behave strangely in the early 1960s when he still lived in Bel Aire, Calif. He developed a hysterical fear of microbes. Sometimes, he would call his doctor half a dozen times a day to complain about his health.

But when the doctor arrived to examine Hughes, the eccentric billionaire sometimes wouldn't allow the doctor to touch him. From across the bedroom, Hughes would ask questions and have the physician write down answers. Hughes was so afraid of germs that he wouldn't allow his doctor to open his mouth to give verbal answers in his presence.

The aides who attended Hughes received huge salaries, as much as $75,000 a year, to cater to his whim. He liked to be babied, and they pampered him outrageously, they tell us.

When he chose not to eat, they didn't press him. When he was ready to eat, they would make sure his favorite cookies and beef stroganoff were prepared to his exact specifications.

His body became stiff and brittle from living in a confined space. The aides urged him to move around until a hip injury in London four years ago kept him largely bedridden for the rest of his life.

Aides erected a special antennae in the Bahamas so Hughes could watch U.S. television on a large screen. A Hughes plane would also fly as many as two dozen movies to his retreats each week. Sometimes he would watch movies for 18 hours at a time, viewing them from the perspective of a Hollywood producer-director.

one intimate told us.

In the adjoining room, his aides could hear the reverberating sounds of the recluse's favorite Westerns. The volume was always high because he was hard of hearing.

The "Old Man," as his aides called Hughes, regarded them as his adopted family. When it came their turn to leave him for a week to visit their own families, he would invent excuses to keep them near him. One member of his circle complained that he had missed the graduation of all of his children because of his devotion to the Old Man.

There were times that Hughes seemed to want to come out of his self-imposed exile. He walked into the lobby of Vancouver's Bayshore Inn under his own power, for example, pausing only to tie the drawstring on his pajama bottom. The hotel guests and a Japanese window washer didn't seem to notice him.

For a time, Hughes enjoyed staring across his balcony to watch the planes at a nearby airport. But an aide suggested that an enterprising photographer with a telephoto lens might be able to snap a picture of Hughes from another building. The curtains were drawn, and Hughes never again looked out of his window.

Why did his devoted aides neglect him in the end? The only explanation they can offer is that they were strictly obedient. When he issued instructions not to send him to a hospital, it didn't occur to them to disregard the instructions when he lapsed into his periodic stupors. Perhaps the only real decision they ever made, one insider conceded, was to fly the dying Hughes back to the U.S.

In a way, Hughes may have ordered his own death by not allowing his closest aides to help him. But U.S. authorities aren't satisfied with this explanation. They want to know whether the quirky Hughes was competent to run his $2 billion empire, why a guardian wasn't appointed and who made the multimillion-dollar financial decisions.

ANYONE FOR SLAVERY?

WASHINGTON— The ethnic issue has become a major one in this year's campaign. Every presidential candidate, in one way or another, has assured his audiences that, while he is not for ethnic purity, he doesn't believe the government should get into the business of ethnic impurity.

I have a black colleague who is very nervous about the direction the campaign is taking.

"They don't talk about unemployment, corruption in government or tax reform any more. They're all tripping over themselves trying to explain that, while they think blacks should live anywhere they want to, the government should not do anything to hurt the neighborhood."

"That's reasonable," I said to Wilson. "If you're a candidate, the ethnic vote is very important in this country and it would be political suicide to get those people mad."

"I agree. But what worries me is that some reporter is going to ask a candidate what he thinks about slavery. Suppose the newspaperman says 'Are you in favor of repealing the Thirteenth Amendment?' What's the politician going to say?"

"I'm certain he'll say he's against bringing back slavery," I said.

"I'm not too sure," Wilson said. "The South is very important to the election and most of the candidates might waffle on it, just as they have on ethnic purity."

"What do you mean?" "Well, one candidate might say, 'Everyone knows my record on slavery, and I don't believe in it. At the same time I do not think it's Washington's job to say to people they can't own slaves if they want them. I think each area should make its own decision on whether they think slaves are good or bad for the community.'"

"I can't believe that, Wilson. Every one of the candidates is an honorable man and there would be a furor if a candidate even hinted he was for slavery."

"Maybe. But then what would happen after the furor is

Poof!

Desserts that ignite guest's appetite

Guests never fully realize how much of a kitchen magician you are. So, why not prove it right on the dinner table? Chafing dish and fondue pot cookery makes it possible.

Chafing Dish Oeufs a la Neige (translation: Eggs on the Snow) is an elegant dessert that could rival Houdini's sleight of hand. But, it's actually a very simple dish. It's merely dainty meringues dotting a light, creamy yellow custard. This particular version adds strawberry slices for color contrast. Uncooked meringue is dropped into the water by tablespoons and then, poof! The spoonfuls swell up to twice their size in less than five minutes. And, the way these white meringue "islands" float amid a creamy custard-strawberry sea is more magical still.

Only sheer sorcery could get snow afire, but, that's just what happens with Snowballs on Fire. In this dessert, flames are conjured up from the top of ice cream balls. A rich custard sauce is kept warm over Sterno canned heat until the spectacle is over, then spooned on top. Except for its warmth, you may never notice the canned heat flame underneath, since it's smokeless and odorless.

Enchant guests further with Festive Fruit Compote. A colorful variety of fruits is ignited into a dessert par excellence.

Once you've finished pulling these desserts out of your chef's hat you can sit back and watch them disappear—fast!

CHAFING DISH OEUFS A LA NEIGE

Custard Sauce:
1 1/2 cup milk
6 egg yolks
1/2 cup orange juice
2 tsp. grated orange rind
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 tsp. salt
1 1/2 tsp. vanilla

Heat milk in top of double boiler over simmering water. In small bowl, beat egg yolks with orange juice, orange rind, sugar and salt. Stir about one-third of the milk into egg yolk mixture. Add to milk in top of double boiler. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until custard thickens enough to coat a spoon. Stir in vanilla. Keep warm while preparing meringues.

Meringues:
3 egg whites, at room temperature dash salt
1/4 cup sugar
1 tsp. grated orange rind
sliced strawberries
In small mixing bowl, beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Add salt. Gradually beat in sugar a tablespoon at a time. Continue to beat until stiff peaks form. Over Sterno canned heat, heat to a boil two inches of water in bain marie portion of chafing dish. Drop meringue by tablespoonfuls onto simmering water. Poach meringues three to five minutes or until puffed and slightly dry to the touch. Remove from water with slotted spoon; set aside on plate. Replace water in bain marie with two inches hot water. Place chafing dish over bain marie and add meringues. Spoon warm custard sauce over each meringue; as skillet fills with custard, meringues will float. Heat until warmed. Sprinkle with orange rind and garnish with strawberries.

YIELD: 6 servings.
SNOWBALLS ON FIRE
1 quart vanilla ice cream
1 can (3 1/2 ounces) flaked coconut
One-third cup milk
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/4 tsp. salt
1 6-ounce package (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
1 tsp. vanilla
1 jar (7 1/2 ounces) marshmallow topping sugar cubes
lemon extract
Scoop vanilla ice cream into balls; roll quickly in flaked coconut. Place in freezer until ready to serve.

To prepare sauce combine milk, butter and salt in fondue pot and bring just to a boil over moderate heat, stirring constantly. Add chocolate pieces and vanilla; stir until blended and smooth. Gradually beat in marshmallow topping. Keep warm over Sterno canned heat. Moisten sugar cubes with lemon extract; place on top of ice cream balls in serving dishes. Ignite sugar cubes. When flame has died away, remove sugar cubes and serve snowballs with warm chocolate sauce.

YIELD: 8 servings.
FESTIVE FRUIT COMPOTE

1/2 cup flaked coconut
1/2 cup slivered almonds

Hookers unite for Washington march

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some shady ladies plan to join the tourist crush on the nation's capital this Bicentennial summer when they gather here for the third annual National Hookers Convention, a meeting complete with rallies, speeches and lobbying on Capitol Hill.

The hookers are coming to Washington to mount a national campaign to decriminalize prostitution and they figure the best place to start is where the laws are made, says Margo St. James, recently in town to organize the convention.

"It's time for a revolutionary attitude toward hookers," she said in an interview. "That's why we picked Washington."

during the Bicentennial."

Miss St. James is the founder or "chairman" as she puts it — of "COYOTE" — "Call Off Your Old Tired Ethics" — a San Francisco-based group which says the criminal stigma should be removed from prostitution.

The convention, scheduled for June 25-26, will be open to the public since "we want community participation," Miss St. James said. She added that she expected several hundred hookers from the East and West coasts, as well as a chartered plane load from Europe.

"Our goal is to make as much noise as possible," the 38-year-old woman said. "We're out to educate the public. It's not an issue that affects most women directly, so it's harder to sell as a political problem. The main thing is to get a dialogue going."

The first two conventions, in 1974 and 1975, were in San Francisco.

The theme of the gathering, the organizer said, will be "Ignorance is no excuse for a law," a play on words of the judge's customary admonishment: "Ignorance of the law is no excuse."

Ann Landers

Girl learns about sex from Ann's column

Dear Ann Landers: The letter signed "Wishing Information" sent me running to my typewriter. I am a high school senior who wants you to know that almost every bit of valid information I learned about sex came from your column.

My parents never told me one thing. The stuff I learned from the kids at school was mostly wrong or so half-baked you wouldn't believe it. Here are some so-called "facts" I picked up in junior high as well as high school. (Mind you, these kids are from 13 to 18 years of age):

1. A girl can get pregnant only one day out of every month.
2. The first time a couple has sex the girl can get pregnant but she is safe the second or third time the same day or evening.
3. It is not possible to get V.D. more than once. The medication that cures V.D. gets into the system and makes you immune for life.
4. If a girl does not have a climax she will not get pregnant.
5. It is not necessary to take the Pill regularly. If a girl takes it just before she has intercourse she is safe for 24 hours.
6. If a pregnant girl eats a lemon every day for two weeks, she will have a miscarriage.

I hope you will publish my letter. Some teenagers will laugh at it but you'd be surprised how many kids actually believe this junk. They are desperate for information. So please hang in there, Ann. — True Blue Fan

Dear True: I plan to. In the meantime, we need a first-rate sex-education program in public schools — taught by competent instructors who know how to present the facts in a straightforward but dignified, non-clinical manner.

Dear Ann Landers: I have this friend who makes me so mad I actually get heartburn. Bernice is quite deaf and wears a hearing aid. She loves to argue. When Bernice realizes she is losing an argument she turns off her hearing aid and says, "Shut up. I can't hear you." This drives me up the wall. How can I cope? — Bicarb In Bay City

Dear Bicarb: Fight fire with fire. When Bernice begins to get huffy, stop talking. Just move your lips. She'll think her hearing aid has gone kaploey and while she is trying to adjust it, speak your piece.

Dear Ann Landers: How much is a man supposed to take? We have been married ten years and have two children, eight and three years of age.

We have a lovely home but it always looks like a pigpen. I'm ashamed to have people over. She can never get it all together. Although our grocery bills are sky high we seem to be eating garbage. Everything is either overcooked or underdone. I always put the children to bed, otherwise they would walk around till midnight. My wife is in the kitchen doing dishes until 10:30 p.m.

Most of the laundry is sent out and a cleaning woman comes in once a month. What my wife does all day I can't imagine.

Do you think things would be better if she took a job outside the home and we hired a housekeeper? I'd like your opinion. — Fed Up

Dear Fed: Does your wife want to work outside the home? You give me no clue whatever as to what her wishes are. Obviously she is a very poor housekeeper and you are not happy with the state of your marriage.

It's a safe bet she isn't happy either. I suggest joint counseling. The solution may be a part-time job and a part-time housekeeper — who can cook.

Hearing set for revision of zoning law

BENTON — The Benton
 Planning and Zoning Commission has completed revision of the proposed zoning ordinance, and has presented it to the City Council.

The City Council has called a hearing for April 26 in the Scott County Court meeting room to give interested residents an opportunity to testify about the revised proposal.

According to City Clerk Neil Dittinger, copies of the revised proposal are available at the city hall for interested residents.

Although remaining a rather restrictive proposal, the revision makes major concessions to mobile home owners.

The new proposal states that house trailers or other mobile homes will be allowed in the R-1 single-family residential areas, providing that they conform to specific conditions, as follows:

78A.1 Application for permit to locate an individual house trailer on an individual lot shall be made to the Board of Adjustment, this application is to be in writing, signed by the applicant, and shall include the applicant's name, address and the name and address of the person proposed to occupy the house trailer.

This application shall also contain the address and legal description of the lot on which it is sought to situate the house trailer and a plot plan, showing the location of the house trailer upon the lot and the location of the lot in relation to street upon which the same abuts.

78A.2 In addition to the foregoing, this application shall be accompanied by the signed consent of the adjoining property owners (whose lots share a common lot line with the proposed lot of the house trailer) to the location of a house trailer on the lot in question. The application shall be accompanied by a fee of $5 and shall be reviewed by the zoning inspector to determine whether the proposed housetrailer placement conforms with the regulations of this section.

78A.3 House trailers may be located on lots or tracts of and located in any residential zoning district. Only one house trailer or mobile home shall be situated on any one single lot of record, and the house trailer shall be so situated on the lot, that the minimum setback on all sides between the house trailer or any part or extensions of the house trailershall be no closer than 10 feet to any boundary of the lot as nearly as possible.

The house trailer shall be connected to a public sewer, where, when public sewer is not available, then, into private sewers or disposal plant or septic tank of such construction and such manner that represent no health hazard and shall be subject to the requirements of the Clean Water Commission of Missouri.

The house trailer or mobile home shall be anchored with approved straps to concrete anchors as required by law or approved by the zoning inspector, shall be underpinned and be skirted with an approved material, shall be placed on an approved pad sufficient to support the wheels and front parking jack and an entrance slab of a minimum of six by 10 feet of poured masonry construction.

The minimum house trailer or mobile home size that is allowed will be 10 feet by 48 feet. City services will not be extended to house trailers or mobile homes not meeting these specifications.

78A.4 Individual mobile homes or house trailers situated on individual lots may be replaced in the same location by the owner of the existing mobile home provided that the new or replacement house trailer meets all of the specifications of these sections and is so situated that it would not violate any of the requirements for new trailer placements.

78A.5 In the case of replacement of an existing mobile home or house trailer at any given location in the City, where the mobile home is presently lawfully situated, replacement may be made upon application by the owner or occupant made to the Board of Adjustment as in the case of placement of a new mobile home.

The application shall be accompanied by a fee of $5, but it shall not be necessary to procure the consent of adjoining property owners as required in the case of a new application.
 The application shall be accompanied by a plot plan showing the location of the existing mobile home and the location of the proposed replacement mobile home. Such replacement must be effected within the 21-day period of the time after the existing mobile home is removed from the lot.
 An extension of time may be

A Bragg City man is injured in gun accident

BRAGG CITY — George
 "Jack" Short, 36, of Route One was injured Saturday night at his home when a gun he was holding accidentally discharged, striking him in the left hand and left leg.

The Pemiscot County Sheriff's Department said Short was holding a .38-caliber revolver when the gun discharged about 7 p.m.

Short was treated at Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital and was scheduled to be transferred to a Memphis hospital, authorities said.

granted for good cause shown,
 but in no case shall the extension of the time for accomplishment of the replacement be extended for more than 30 days.

Provision was also made in the revision for the carnival people, who live in their trailers during the annual Neighbor Day festivities.

The revised proposal states that a unanimous vote of the Board of Adjustment will not be necessary to decide on a variance, and the C-1 general business district has had residential uses removed for the excluded uses list.

17th inning blast wins it for Mets

Unser makes up for miscue

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Del Unser brooded for 4½ hours against the St. Louis Cardinals Monday night, then awoke, from his slumber.

The lifetime .264 hitter, who has done better than that for the New York Mets, suddenly took up the business at hand and homered to break up a 4-3 game that took 17 innings to resolve.

"Any time I make a mistake defensively I take a lot of remorse in it," said Unser, whose blunder afield in the nationally televised game permitted Reggie Smith a double and the Cards two first-inning runs.

"If I hadn't made that mistake, Jerry Grote could have gone 2-for-4 instead of 4-for-8," the Mets' center fielder added soberly. "I just couldn't find a place to hide after that happened."

As it turned out, misplays abounded and few places were found to hide for 40 players, 19 of them Mets, following the misjudged drive which staked the Cards to a 2-0 lead.

First baseman Keith Hernandez reciprocated with a stray throw for St. Louis which put New York quickly back on top by 3-2.

And before the clock slipped around well past midnight in the 4-hour 46-minute struggle, both sides kicked around not only the baseball but numerous opportunities to win.

The marathon contest approached the longest night game ever, that lasting seven hours and four minutes between the Mets and Cards in September, 1974.

The Mets paraded four right-handed pitchers, beginning with Tom Seaver and ending with Bob Apodaca, 1-0, before cashing in on their only extra-base blow among 18 hits.

By contrast, the Cards sent four right-handers to the mound interspersed with three left-handers, including Mike Wallace, 0-1, the victim of Unser's blow.

Six of St. Louis' 11 hits were doubles, with two coming off the bat of Bake McBride before the nimble center fielder at least equalled the enormity of Unser's early misdeed.

McBride, who had five hits, singled to open the Cards' 13th and then unaccountably took off for second base on a 3-0 count to Ted Simmons.

He was thrown out by John Stearns, the second of two New York catchers, and afterward St. Louis wasted a walk to Simmons and Felix Millan's error at second base which would probably have snapped the tie.

The winning pitcher, Apodaca, prevailed by retiring the Cards' Hector Cruz and Vic Harris after McBride's second double and two intentional walks loaded the bases in the 15th.

But the man of the hour, or even of several hours, was Unser, who faced Wallace after two were out in the final inning.

"I was just up there trying to swing," explained Unser, who prior to his connection had been hitless but had scored a run on Hernandez' error.

"I'd gone 0-for-7," he emphasized. "When you get into extra innings, there's no sense in fooling around."

One who could rue Unser's words was Wallace, a former Philadelphia Phillie teammate of the 31-year-old Met whose memory stretched even beyond.

"I used to watch this guy when I was in high school.

What's he doing still playing baseball?" Wallace asked in mock disdain.

"Tell him I'm sticking around to pick up my pension,"

Unser replied in the New York clubhouse. "If I can keep myself from messing up too many plays, I just might get it."

Olympic hopeful wins

BOSTON (AP) — Jack Fultz, a 27-year-old Georgetown University senior, trained his sights on the U.S. Olympic trials today after winning the 80th Boston Marathon with the neighborly assistance of spectators along the route.

Fultz graciously accepted water and ice cubes and a few hosiings as he conquered blistering heat and won the Patriots' Da' run from Hopkinton to Boston Monday, qualifying for the Olympic trials May 22 in Oregon.

"You have to give the people with the hoses all the credit in the world," Fultz said. "They made the course tolerable. Otherwise, in this heat, it would have been intolerable."

The temperature was an unofficial 116 degrees on one thermometer in the sun outside Hopkinton High School when the race got under way at noon. There were 1,898 starters, plus about 70 women in their special race.

"The heat affected me, it slowed me down," Fultz said. "I just kept drinking as much as I could without getting cramps. I didn't expect to win until I stepped on the (finish) line. I started slowly, but I saw the leaders most of the time."

Fultz remained off the pace while Richard Mabuza of Swaziland and Radamas Vega of Mexico duelled for the lead. Vega finally dropped out and Mabuza held a 15-second lead over Fultz after 17½ miles. Suddenly, Fultz charged to the front as Mabuza tired.

Fultz, who returned to college after a three-year hitch in the Coast Guard, doused himself with water often without breaking stride as he easily cleared three major hills, including famed "Heartbreak."

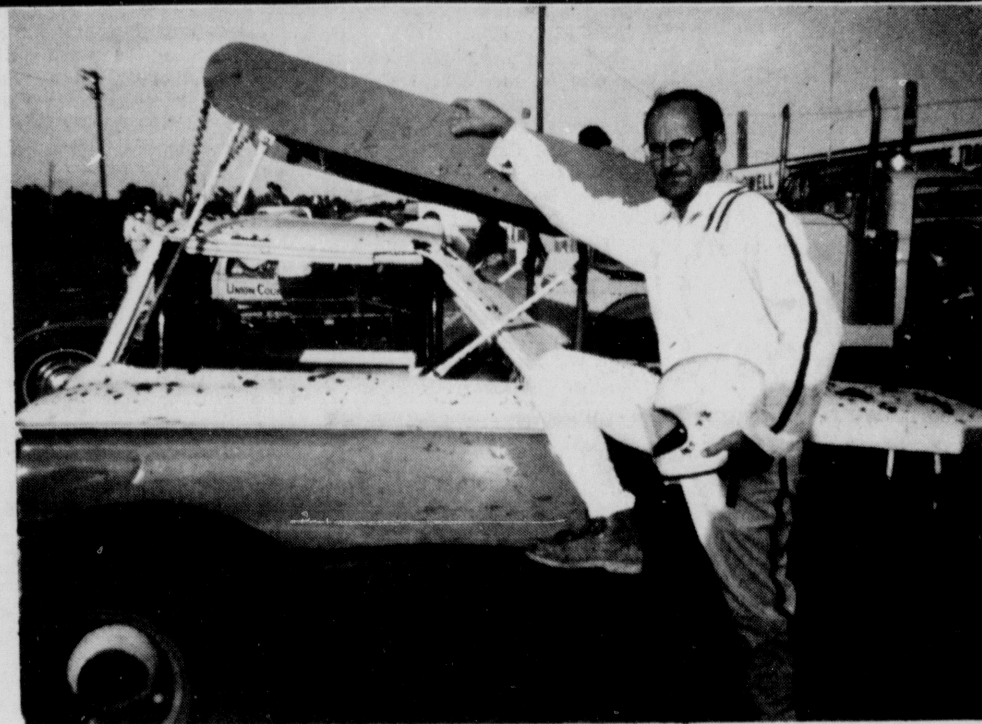

He gradually built a commanding lead down the stretch, finishing the 26-mile, 385-yard run in 2 hours, 20 minutes and 19 seconds. Mario Cuevas of Mexico was second in 2:21.13, followed by Jose DeJesus of Puerto Rico in 2:22.10 and pre-race favorite Jack Foster of New Zealand in 2:22.30. Mabuzza finished 36th in 2:32.47.

Fultz qualified for the Olympic trials, which has a 2:23 limit, even though he never threatened Bill Rodgers' BAA record of 2:09.55. Rodgers, Frank Shorter and others already have qualified for the trials and did not compete in the Boston race.

"If I had already qualified for the trials I wouldn't have run here, either," Fultz said. "Now I'll go back to school, rest up and train as hard as I can. Then I'll go to the Olympic trials and run as fast as I can."

Kim Merritt, a 20-year-old University of Wisconsin-Parkside senior, won the women's race in 2:47.19 in her third marathon. She complained that her feet hurt, but said she did not feel the heat "because so many people threw water on me."

Richard Rodgers of Anna, Illinois has been one of the most successful Class B car drivers at the Sikeston Speedway in the past. Rodgers will be on hand this Saturday night when the Speedway opens for the 1976 season.

NHL Playoffs resume tonight

By The Associated Press
The Philadelphia Flyers are back on Broad Street tonight — so look for them to be the same old Bullies.

The Flyers' game is hitting, and now that they've returned to the friendly confines of the Spectrum, expect some hitting when they take on the Toronto Maple Leafs in the fifth game of their National Hockey League playoff series, which is tied 2-2.

Two other Stanley Cup quarter-final series, both tied 2-2, resume tonight with the Los Angeles Kings at the Boston Bruins and the New York Islanders at the Buffalo Sabres.

The Montreal Canadiens eliminated Chicago in four straight, wrapping up their set series with a 4-1 decision Sunday night.

"We can't change and be effective at the same time," said Flyers assistant coach Mike Nykoluk. "Our game is to take the body, and we must do that to win. We will be taking the body as much as ever — we want to win."

The Maple Leafs evened the series by beating the Flyers 4-3 Saturday night in a game which saw just 10 penalties for 20 total minutes. That was a stark contrast to Thursday night's brawl, where 173 penalty minutes were whistled and criminal charges were filed against three Philadelphia players by Ontario's provincial attorney general, Roy McMurtry. Nykoluk noted that the usually tempestuous Flyers had their troubles making the transition to mild-mannered folks. Coach Fred Shero agreed that his club should feel more comfortable back home.

"What has transpired (in Toronto) has bothered this club to a degree," Shero said. "I'm confident when we get back home we'll be more comfortable. We'll feel better and we'll play better."

Buffalo, like Philadelphia, is happy to be home. The Sabres won two games at home, then dropped the next two on the road. But the losses didn't bother Punch Imlach, Buffalo's general manager.

"If they get the next game, then I'll start to worry," he said. "I never expected four straight. I would take it, but there was no way I expected it."

Boston Coach Don Cherry said winning the fourth game against the Kings may have been the turning point in that series.

"It was a big victory for us," said Cherry. "It swung the momentum back to us. Now we just have to keep it going. The Kings are a good team and it's going to be tough from here on in. But we do have two out of three games in Boston, and we're ready."

PARK CITY, Utah (AP) — An awards luncheon today wrapped up the Jill St. John-Paul Masson Celebrity Ski Races, which were held to raise money for the U.S. Ski Team, headquartered here.

Dr. J earns his MVP

By

The Associated Press

Julius Erving has been the American Basketball Association's Most Valuable Player each of the past three seasons, and he showed why at the Nassau Coliseum Monday night.

Erving's 32 points helped New York to a 110-108 lead over the San Antonio Spurs, and his blocked shot in the final five seconds kept it that way as the Nets grabbed a 3-2 advantage in their best-of-seven playoff semifinal.

With nine seconds to go and the Spurs trailing by two, San Antonio called time out and set up a play for Mike Gale. The 6-foot-4 guard, a former Net, shook free along the left side some 18 feet from the basket and let fly with a jumper with five seconds to play.

"I thought I had it," he said, shaking his head. "It looked good all the way. It seemed like it had eyes ... and then he came from out of nowhere."

"He" was Erving. Dr. J, lurking near the foul line, swooped over and rejected the shot. A desperation try by George Gervin at the buzzer bounced off the rim, and the Nets had their 110-108 triumph. In the other ABA semifinal, the Kentucky Colonels beat the Denver Nuggets 126-114 at Louisville to take a 2-1 lead in their series.

"I saw Gale from the foul line," said Erving. "I was waiting for him to commit himself. I was watching the ball, not my man. Once he went into the air I just moved over and blocked it."

Ex-Net Larry Kenon led the Spurs with 27 points.

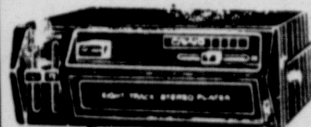

The Nets can wrap up the series Wednesday night in San Antonio. If the Spurs win that one, the deciding game will be played Sunday at the Nassau Coliseum.

Speedy guard Bird Averitt scored 40 points and 7-foot-2 center Artis Gilmore netted 36 to lead the Colonels past the Nuggets, the ABA's regular-season champions.

Malpractice rate increase is approved

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A 200 per cent increase for medical malpractice insurance rates charged by the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company has been tentatively approved, the Division of Insurance reported Friday.

The rate increase means a general practitioner's annual premium will be $1,600, while specialists such as neurosurgeons will pay $13,000 a year, said William Lichius of the Insurance Division.

The rate increase was initially rejected by the division. But at a later hearing, the company provided statistics showing $1.5 million had been collected in 1975 premiums, while $1.2 million was recorded as losses. The division decided the losses justified the rate request increase and tentatively approved it.

The division ordered the company to make quarterly reports of its premium income, losses and expenses for each type of medical malpractice insurance in Missouri for 1975. The information will be used to analyze the rates following a 12-month review period.

Dr. Lamb

Her mother grows senile

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My mother at age 61, an intelligent, active woman, developed what was diagnosed as cerebral atrophy. Four years later she had gradually deteriorated to the point where she is a body without a mind, unable to speak or feed herself and apparently unable to recognize us. There is no family history of such an illness, so we assumed perhaps a head injury was behind it. However, another member of the family is now showing similar symptoms. Can you tell us what causes this condition?

DEAR READER — I understand thoroughly your distress. I wish there were some good answer to give you. Your mother's condition is the same as that which occurs in many older people. Whether it begins early or late the changes are approximately the same. I don't need to detail these because they are all too familiar in our society. In medical circles we call these dementia and sometimes senile dementia, although it must be stated that this condition can occur at a relatively young age, specifically in later middle age in some people. Women seem to be more susceptible to this disorder at an early age than are men.

Most of these disorders are associated with actual changes in the cells of the brain, and the condition can occur in individuals with brain injury as may be seen sometimes in boxers who had repeated excessive head injuries. The development of symptoms may be gradual or more rapid. One of the earliest signs is the diminished ability for problem solving. Individuals lose the ability to cope with new problems. Stated simply, they lose their previous capacity to learn even though they may still be able to handle old familiar tasks.

We do not know what causes this condition, but these disorders are usually included as part of the picture of aging. However, medicine has long had a tendency to classify disorders that are not well understood as aging, only to find later that they are true diseases. A good example here is the common heart attack. We now know that heart disease can begin in young men in their early twenties and thus is hardly a disease of aging.

Sometimes disease of the arteries to the brain contributes to this problem. In other instances, the degeneration of the brain cells seems to be independent of disease to the arteries.

What we really need is a better understanding of the fundamental process of aging and how to prevent it. The truth is, we are very close to being able to control biological aging. That statement may startle some people, but we already understand a great deal of the regeneration process, how cells are replaced, and even how to make duplicates of frogs from the nucleus of an intestinal cell (popularly called cloning). Those who want information on what we understand about aging can send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 1-7, Perpetual Youth, Aging, Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Neighbors come with loving hands

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Almost before the smoke had cleared, Albert and Iva Scott's neighbors were on hand to help rebuild the house and replace the possessions of a lifetime.

The job is almost done now. The Scotts' neighbors spent $4,000 to rebuild the home destroyed by fire at the corner of Windsor Street and Poorhouse Lane, across from a graveyard. One neighbor, James Allen, said the free labor alone would have cost $10,000.

"All we had was what we stood in," Scott, 73, said of the March blaze. "We lost everything."

Mrs. Scott, 73, blind and nearly deaf, remembered that night. They had been sitting on the porch. Scott went in to get a crochet hook for her. He saw the flames licking at the ceiling.

Scott ran for water "but it (the fire) had run like gasoline."

Then Mrs. Scott felt someone carrying her from the porch. "I heard the fire engine coming," she said. "And I thought: 'Oh no, there's a fire. My house must have burned down.'"

It had.

But then the neighbors came, rebuilding the house with their time, money and talent.

"For the ones who don't have and can't afford, this is what we do," said Allen.

They dug a new foundation amid the rubble, poured a concrete floor, and raised the walls and roof. The new house has three bedrooms, a bathroom, a living room and kitchen — just like the old one.

But unlike the old house, the new one has concrete walls and new wiring to reduce the chance of another fire. Fire officials said the fire may have been caused by faulty wiring.

While the men built the home, the women cooked and brought them pots filled with pigeon peas and rice, fish chowder and pigs feet.

Lincolniana

Historian Homer Cunningham, a faculty member at Whitworth College in Spokane, Wash., toured Kentucky, Illinois and Washington D.C. to gather information on the early life of Abraham Lincoln. Cunningham's investigation turned up some little known facts about the nation's 16th President.

This ramshackle cabin, below, was the scene of one of young Abe Lincoln's few career setbacks — a business venture that flopped with a hard-drinking partner in New Salem, Illinois in 1831. The partner was usually drunk and Lincoln so preoccupied studying his lawbooks, that their dry goods store scarcely attracted enough customers to support their business for a year.

In 1837, Lincoln moved to Springfield, Ill. where a month later, he opened a law office with another attorney. In 1842 at the age of 32, he married Mary Todd and moved into the house below. The parlor, above, was where most of the formal entertaining was held and site of several political strategy sessions for Lincoln's election to Congress in 1846. Historian Cunningham learned that Mary Todd Lincoln turned out to be one of candidate Lincoln's shrewdest advisers. Of $200 raised by friends in his Congressional bid, Lincoln returned $199.25 of it, keeping campaign spending limited to 75 cents.

The elaborate Lincoln Memorial in Springfield houses the original tomb built just after the President's assassination in 1865. During the transfer of the body from the Lincoln family crypt, thieves attempted to kidnap the body for ransom but were caught.

Plummer Enjoys Character Parts

By WAKA TSUNODA
NEW YORK (AP) — In his latest movie, Christopher Plummer, the blue-eyed sophisticate of the international screen, slaps on a huge black mustache and a thatched wig, and plays Rudyard Kipling.

Plummer also hides behind steel-rimmed glasses, so the star of "Sound of Music," "The Return of the Pink Panther," "Conduct Unbecoming" and many other movies, television shows and stage plays, is almost unrecognizable in "The Man Who Would Be King."

The movie is based on a short story of the same name by the famous English author, Kipling, and its two protagonists are played by Michael Caine and Sean Connery. "I love playing character parts and getting into disguises," Plummer said in an interview here. "I think that's much more fun than playing straight parts. In fact, I'm hoping to become a character actor."

With a cheerful laugh, he adds, "I'm getting to the age when I have to be a character actor whether I like it or not."

Plummer, who admits to his early 40s, points out he has always been fond of playing character parts, and says he will be very happy to "go into that notch of work."

The actor has drawn plaudits from critics for his Kipling

NEW ROLE—Christopher Plummer dons wig, mustache and steel-rimmed glasses for his portrayal of Rudyard Kipling in "The Man Who Would Be King."

role, a pleasant surprise for him because the role was relatively small. Then again, he has always been known as an actor with a solid background in dramatic arts.

Plummer has been a leading man with three top repertory companies in the English-speaking world: the National Theatre of Great Britain under Laurence Olivier; the Royal Shakespeare Theatre under Peter Hall; and the National Theatre of Canada under Tyrone Guthrie and Michael Langham.

And he has won many awards, including the London Evening Standard Award as Best Actor of the Year for his portrayal of Henry II in "Becket"; the Tony Award, the Outer Critics Circle Award and the New York Drama Desk Award for his performance in the title role of the musical, "Cyrano"; and the New York Drama League Delia Austrian Award for Best Performance in a Drama Play for Neil Simon's "The Good Doctor."

Plummer, a Canadian, says there has been a big — and lamentable — change in the theater audience on both sides of the Atlantic.

"It's awfully difficult to get people to listen nowadays, and that's the sad, sad part of our times," he says. "The concentration level is getting lower and lower."

"And people, particularly children, have lost the desire to read," continued the actor, who blames it all on television. "Books are no longer interesting as they were. It makes you wonder sometimes if it's worth bringing children into the world!"

He himself has one teen-age daughter from his first marriage to Tammy Grimes.

Still, he intends to keep working in the theater and that's partly why he lives in Connecticut. "It's so close to Broadway, and it's in the middle between California and Europe," he explains.

He adds, however, that right now he can't afford to do Broadway. Instead, he must go on making films, he says, because he needs money.

"My wife, Elaine, and I are doing up our house," said the actor, referring to their 1955 carriage house.

BACK on the list of political names to speculate with, John Connally has indicated interest in the vice-presidential spot on next year's Republican ticket. There are suggestions that the former Texas governor and Treasury secretary might even be eyeing the top spot.

husband's service to the city as police dispatcher prior to his recent death, approved the appointment of Rick Coffey and Ken Sexton as police dispatchers, reappointed Joe Weber to the airport board, decided to purchase new police cars through Bud Shell Ford of Dexter and set the fee for a dog license at $1.50.

Missouri to elect delegates tonight

that it was too early to go with any of the candidates.

Spainhower predicted tonight's delegate selection results would produce more uncommitted delegates than any other, followed by Carter supporters. But he said he doubted that the number of uncommitted delegates would be more than half of those available.

Another party leader supporting the uncommitted slate, Sen. Thomas Eagleton, said recent primaries have been "personality contests."

"Thus, I really have not yet had the opportunity to learn enough about these candidates, their positions, and their respective abilities to run an effective and winning campaign to make an informed choice," he concluded.

Carter, who feels an uncommitted slate would help Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, telephoned state party leaders over the weekend, trying to get them to change their uncommitted stance before Tuesday night's meetings. During a visit to the state last week, he said Missourians should not turn over their voting rights to public officials, no matter how popular they are.

Missouri's delegation to the Democratic National Convention in New York will be the largest from a state which does not hold a primary election. All of the delegates will not be chosen until the June 12 state convention.

Of the state's delegation, 75 per cent or 54 will come from Missouri's 10 congressional districts and the remaining 17 will be chosen at the state convention.

Tuesday night's meetings are the first level of caucuses leading up to the congressional district meetings and later state convention.

A proportional rather than winner-take-all method of selecting delegates will be used at all levels of the Democratic party gatherings, including the ward, township, county, congressional district and state conventions.

Persons attending the meetings are polled as to which presidential candidate they support. Each candidate receiving more than 15 per cent of the support at the meetings would be allotted their percentage of the total number of delegates available.

Supporters for Carter, U.S. Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona and Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington will not predict how many delegates they eventually hope to collect for their candidates.

Press coverage at trials is debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — "What is the difference between everybody else in the courtroom going out and talking about what happened in the hearing and the press reporting it?" asked Justice Thurgood Marshall.

"The difference," replied Nebraska assistant Atty. Gen. Harold Mosher, "is one of degree."

The exchange was one of dozens between the nine members of the Supreme Court and four lawyers who argued before them Monday on the power of judges to restrict news coverage of criminal cases.

The court is expected to decide the question within a few weeks.

Before the court is a judge's order that prevented newsmen from reporting most of the evidence at a preliminary hearing last October in a Nebraska mass-murder case. The hearing was open to the public.

The order was one of an increasing number being issued by judges to curtail publicity, which they contend could make it impossible to obtain an impartial jury.

E. Barrett Prettyman Jr., a Washington lawyer representing news media challenging the Nebraska order, said such orders are ineffective and an unconstitutional prior restraint on publications.

"I would be here making this argument even if prior restraints worked," said Prettyman. "They don't work. They result in rumor, gossip and speculation, which is far more dangerous to the defendant than factual reporting in newspapers."

County Attorney Milton R. Larson of Lincoln County, Neb., who successfully prosecuted Ervin Charles Simants for the October slayings, said, "I think if Mrs. Jones tells me something I am going to find it easier to put that aside than if I read in the newspaper that the evidence at a preliminary hearing showed it to be so."

Prettyman, asked by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger if he would take the same position if the judge told lawyers not to talk rather than newspapers not to publish, said an order that would be impermissible if directed at the press might be permissible if framed in a way to restrict out-of-court statements by attorneys.

Floyd Abrams, representing numerous media organizations that supported Nebraska news outlets in the case, said prior restraint on the press was "becoming commonplace and must be curbed. The power to levy prior restraints on news reporting is the power to destroy."

Justice John Paul Stevens asked what should be done about confessions that turn out to be inadmissible in court after they have been reported in the news. "We have to live with that," said Abrams.

Mosher argued that courts must achieve a "delicate balance" between the freedom of the press guaranteed in the First Amendment to the Constitution and the Sixth Amendment's guarantee of a fair trial.

Fuel conservation to receive equal status in policy change

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a policy reversal, the Ford administration is raising fuel conservation to equal status with developing new sources of energy in the effort to reduce U.S. dependence on foreign suppliers.

The Energy Research and Development Administration included the increased emphasis on conservation in an updated plan for energy research submitted to Congress on Monday.

The updated report estimated that conservation could save the nation at least one-third of today's oil consumption by 1985.

ERDA Administrator Robert C. Seamans Jr. said the update "reflects widespread public reaction to the initial plan," which last June downgraded conservation in favor of developing new energy sources.

The administration said then that significant fuel savings would require mandatory conservation measures that Congress would not pass.

However, early this month the government reported a steady drop in energy consumption since 1973 due, at least in part, to conservation. Seamans said, in outlining the new plan, that his agency has not worked out details of an aggressive conservation program. But he said it will include development of better ways to insulate homes and buildings, and elimination of pilot lights for gas stoves and heaters.

The report said conservation is much less expensive than production and can be effected more rapidly.

"It typically costs less to save a barrel of oil than to produce one through the development of new technology," the report said.
